Minute Maid has put more emphasis on low-calorie fruit beverages, starting with the Adult Refreshments line and then branching out to chilled multi-serve formats. In the last year or more, it has overhauled its diet offerings — even uprooting longstanding SKUs.

- As noted, it introduced Light Lemonade in March 2002. In November of that year, Coca-Cola added Light Lemonade to restaurant and foodservice spigots, making it the “first diet, non-carbonated postmix fountain drink containing real juice.”
- However, Light Lemonade, along with Light Pink Lemonade (also introduced in 2002), Light Fruit Punch, Light Mango Passion Fruit Drink (introduced in 2013) and Light Watermelon Blueberry (2016 debut) hit the chopping block.
- Several years ago, Minute Maid had already begun a transition of sorts, beefing up its light juice drinks with several multi-serve varieties boasting 15 calories per serving each. These included Just 15 Calories Lemonade (similar in formulation to the 59-ounce carafe of now-defunct Light Lemonade) and Just 15 Calories Fruit Punch, both in 59-ounce cartons.
- Starting in 2019, Minute Maid replaced the aforementioned Light Juice Drinks (Light Lemonade et al) and Just 15 varieties with Zero Sugar drinks in four flavors. Zero Sugar Mango Passion, Zero Sugar Pink Lemonade, Zero Sugar Fruit Punch and Zero Sugar Lemonade all come in chilled 52-ounce carafes. Zero Sugar Lemonade also comes in shelf-stable 16.9- and six-packs of 20-ounce PET bottles and 12-packs of 12-ounce cans.
- Light Cherry Limeade debuted in 2018 in six-packs of 16.9- and 20-ounce bottles. It is still sold although only the smaller size remains.

More than a year ago, Minute Maid introduced a new platform.

- Aguas Frescas originally came in 16-ounce cans in Hibiscus, Mango and Strawberry flavors. Aguas frescas have been a difficult market proposition over the years. It supported the launch with various promotions geared towards Generation Z, as well as a cheeky tagline, “Refreshing AF.”
- It has done well enough so far to warrant another flavor (Pineapple Horchata) in 52-ounce carafes. The other three flavors have also added 12-ounce can multi-packs, while Strawberry and Hibiscus are now in the 52-ounce carafes as well.
